Extra Curricular Activities

<image>

At Etone, there are lots of fun activities you can do after school .

These are things like sports, music, drama, art, and clubs where you can try new hobbies and make friends.

Whether you like playing football, learning to play an instrument, or being part of the school choir, there's something for everyone.

These activities help you learn new skills, stay active, and have a great time outside of regular classes.

These are updated each term with new activities to try!

Careers Provision at Etone College involves every subject. Within your lessons you will have the opportunity to earn employability rewards and badges. Our employability skills are Initiative and Organisation, Teamwork and Communication, Technology and Numeracy and Resilience and Problem Solving.

During your first term at Etone you will read a novel set in a futuristic dystopian society. These tasks will help to prepare you for the work we will be doing. During your first lesson, hand your completed tasks to your teacher to earn house points. All completed work will be entered into a prize draw to win a free book (one prize for each class).

Key Term: DYSTOPIA – an imagined society in which there is great suffering and injustice. A society that is unfair.

Dystopia

Look at the characteristics of dystopian societies listed opposite. Can you think of any

- films or stories that you have seen ore read that had similar settings? List them below.
- An imagined place or state in which everything is unpleasant or bad;
- a strict regime;
- an oppressed society;
- a place where people are controlled and treated unfairly.

Dystopian stories and films that I know are:e.g. Star Wars

Task I: Look at the images below (from dystopian films) and list 2 or 3 things that you think make them seem dystopian (unfair or an unpleasant place to live).

2.	2.
3.	3.

English Transition Challenge

Task 2: This is the blurb for the dystopian novel 'Divergent' by Veronica Roth. Read the blurb and then summarise what you think might make this novel dystopian.

Task 3: The novel 'Noughts and Crosses' by Malorie Blackman is set in a dystopian society where one group of people are treated unfairly because of the colour of their skin. Read this extract from the opening of the novel and answer the questions below.

'I live in a palace with golden walls and silver turrets and marble floors....' I opened my eyes and looked at my house. My heart sank. I closed my eyes again. 'I live in a mansion with mullion windows and leaded light casements and a swimming pool and stables in the acres and acres of grounds.' I opened one eye. It still hadn't worked. I hesitated outside my house – if you could call it that. Every time I came back from Sephy's, I flinched at the sight of the shack that was meant to be my home. Why couldn't my family live in a house like Sephy's? Why didn't any Nought I knew of live in a house like Sephy's? Looking at our rundown hovel, I could feel the usual burning, churning sensation begin to rise up inside me. My stomach tightened, my eyes began to narrow. I forced myself to look at the trees, lifting their branches up to the sky. I watched a solitary cloud slow dance above me, I watched a bird soar without a care in the world.

Glossary: turrets- little towers hovel- a small place/shed

I. Where typically would you find 'golden walls and silver turrets and marble floors'?

2. What can you infer from the quotation: 'My heart sank' ?

3. What are Callum's wishes?

English Transition Challenge

Task 2: There is some equipment that is used regularly in the lab. For each of the pieces of equipment below we would like you to find the correct name.

History Transition Challenge

Enquiry questions: Who was Walter Tull? How can we use sources to find out about him? What can he teach us about what happened in the past?

What evidence do historians use?

Historians try to find out what happened in the past. To do this they need to piece together what happened from the clues that survive. Historians call these clues sources. Historical sources are something that tells us about history. It may be a document, a picture, a sound recording, a book, a cinema film, a television program or an object. Anything from the period in question that conveys information can qualify as a source. You are going to look at two sources from the National Archives that help you answer the enquiry questions below.

Walter Tull was born on 28 April 1888 in Folkstone, Kent. His father was from Barbados and his mother from Kent. His parents died when he was aged 9 years old. Walter and his brother were brought up in an orphanage in Bethnal Green, East London. From 1908 he started to play football and was signed by Clapham FC, then the following year by Tottenham Hotspur F.C. He was the second person of African-Caribbean mixed heritage to play in the top division of the Football League. He later moved to Northampton Town F.C. in 1911 where he played half-back.

At the start of the First World War Tull joined the 17th (1st Football) Battalion of the Middlesex Regiment as a Lance-Corporal. In 1915 he served in France and was later placed in hospital for shell shock. In 1916, he returned to action in September and fought in the Battle of the Somme, afterwards attending officer training in Britain then going back to serve in the 23rd Battalion of the Middlesex regiment as a second lieutenant.

Despite army rules which forbade a 'person of colour' being commissioned as an officer (a leader of men), Walter was promoted to lieutenant after officer training school at Gailes, Scotland. In 1917. Tull is widely considered the first African-Caribbean mixed heritage man to be commissioned as an infantry officer in the British Army.

Walter Tull died aged 29 in 1918 while leading an attack on the Western front during the Second Battle of the Somme in March. The Commanding Officer of the 23rd Battalion recommended him for a Military Cross for bravery.
